Let’s Reflect on That...

Reflecting on your TTT Project

A young boy was walking down a beach where lots of starfish had been swept up onto the shore. As he strolled across the sand, he’d repeatedly pick up a stranded starfish and throw it back into the ocean. An onlooker saw the boy and asked what he was doing. The boy replied that the starfish were unable to get back into the water and would die as the sun rose higher and the sky became hotter. The onlooker glanced at all the starfish over the beach and said “But there are millions of starfish on this beach; how can your efforts make any difference?” The boy looked at the starfish he was holding and flung it back into the sea. He looked up at the man, smiled and said, “it will make a difference to this one”.

TTT - using talents, treasures and time to make a difference.
Experience is not what happens to a man; it is what a man does with what happened to him.

In your TTT project, you will be having a number of new experiences. What you do with these experiences – what you learn from them – will make a big difference to what you get out of the whole TTT process. That is why we have produced this journal: to give you a place to reflect on your experiences and to learn from them. Regularly – at least once a week – write and perhaps draw about you have done, keeping in mind the service goals and the learning goals that you hope to achieve.

TTT Project Description:

My service goals (the service outcomes I want to achieve) are:

My learning goals are (think broadly: learning linked to the curriculum; learning personal skills - teamwork, communication, leadership, problem solving; learning linked to career; learning about different groups – the aged, the young, those with disabilities; learning about issues – the environment, poverty etc.):

Each time you write in your journal, you will be asked to think about five simple points:

What? Report what happened – describe facts and events.

So What? What did you learn? How did you feel? What difference will it make?

Now What? As a result of what has happened, how will you think in the future and what actions will you take?

Next time, I would do this differently... Perhaps there is something that you could have handled better.

I feel proud that I... Describe something that you feel proud about.

Every individual matters. Every individual has a role to play. Every individual makes a difference. And we have a choice: What sort of difference do we want to make?

Three people were at work on a construction site. All were doing the same job, but when each was asked what his job was, the answers were varied. “Breaking rocks,” the first replied. “Earning my living,” the second said. “Helping to build a cathedral,” said the third.
